

Fight for Compassion and Fairness for All Citizens: Why Rejecting Commercialized Sports Gambling Helps Break America's Big Losing Streak

SUMMARY

Public officials and opinion leaders of all political stripes who profess a desire to improve opportunity and alleviate poverty often lament how few levers they have to pull.

Saving is the road to wealth creation yet around 50% of the U.S. population has zero or negative net wealth.¹ More than 60% of citizens don't have enough savings to cover a $1000 emergency expense.² This is a critical issue because asset-building is the direct opposite of commercialized gambling.

Americans were expected to lose $118 billion of their personal wealth to government-sanctioned gambling in 2018.³ Over the next eight years, the American people are on a collision course to lose more than $1 trillion of their personal wealth to government-sanctioned gambling.⁴ If approved, commercialized sports betting will make these financial losses even worse.

To improve opportunity and increase mobility out of poverty, state officials must stop turning millions of people who are small earners, who could be small savers, into habitual bettors.

THE FACTS

1) Commercialized Sports Gambling Is a Form of Financial Fraud, Similar to Loan-Sharking, Price-Gouging, and False Advertising, That Results in Life-Changing Financial Losses for Millions of Americans

- What separates commercialized gambling from every other business is it's a big con game based on financial fraud and exploitation. Citizens are conned into thinking they can win money on games that are designed to get them fleeced in the end. If you pay for a hamburger, a ticket to a sporting event, or a glass of wine, that's what you receive in return. In commercialized gambling, what you receive is a financial exchange offering the lure that you might win money. But this financial exchange is mathematically rigged against you so inevitably you lose your money in the end, especially if you keep gambling. They make you feel good about losing your money.
- Making a bet with a friend, that's one thing, but if you do it against a sportsbook, you're going to lose money all the time. An ESPN journalist who covers sports gambling told an Ohio newspaper: "There was a study in Australia of the accounts at a major bookmaker. Out of 500,000 accounts, only 50 individuals were found to be profitable."⁵
- If you try to win, the bookmakers don't let you place bets anymore. An ESPN story recently highlighted that bookmakers are severely restricting or closing accounts for the very fact that these people are winning!⁶
- Commercialized sports gambling damages more than just a person's financial well-being, it also damages their health. In a survey of nearly 10,000 adults in Massachusetts, sports bettors had higher rates of problem gambling — 5.7 percent — compared with adults who bet at casinos, bought lottery and raffle tickets or made private bets.⁷

- Gamblers who bet online had even higher problem gambling rates, 18.2 percent.⁸
- These addicted online gamblers are the main source of profits. According to a major UK report, online gambling operators make more than half of their profits from at risk and problem gamblers.⁹
- These online gamblers get caught up into significant financial debt. One of the few countries that has legal sports gambling, Ireland, just issued its first ever national survey on gambling. It found three quarters of online gamblers have borrowed money or sold something in order to place a bet.¹⁰

2) Commercialized Sports Betting Severely Harms Children and Will Radically Change the Way That Children Consume Sports

- Gambling ads and marketing ARE EVERYWHERE in regions with commercial sports gambling. In the United Kingdom, where sports gambling is legal, 1 out of every 5 ads during a sporting event is a gambling ad.¹¹
- But it's not only an endless blitz of TV and radio ads. A recent UK study found more than 250 separate gambling advertisements on screen during the BBC's Match of the Day. These were found on team uniforms emblazoned with the names of gambling companies on them; stadium and arena surfaces where continuous gambling ads surround the game itself; and pre-match and post-match interviews.¹²

- Promotions and special offers for several major online gambling firms are regularly appearing in the social media feeds of children and directing them to the companies' websites via the social network.¹³
- Twitter users under the age of 18 who follow popular sports accounts in the UK are being "bombarde" with online gambling ads, according to an investigation by The Times of London.¹⁴
- The high frequency of marketing by gambling operators has normalized gambling for kids, leading them to believe gambling was central to playing and watching sports.¹⁵
- Two in three UK teenagers feel deluged by advertisements for online gambling firms on TV.¹⁶
- Almost half these teenagers– 49% – said some of these companies' commercials made gambling look like a good way to make money.¹⁷
- This marketing has devastating effects on young people: Researchers have previously found that more than half of 16-year-olds in the UK have gambling apps on their smartphones – two years before they are legally allowed to place bets.¹⁸

- 450,000 UK children aged 11 to 16 bet regularly, more than those who have taken drugs, smoked or drunk alcohol, according to the UK’s Gambling Commission study.¹⁹
- 75% of children as young as 8 could correctly recall a sports betting brand, repeatedly exposing them to harmful messages and advertisements about sports gambling, according to a study by the Victorian Responsible Gambling Foundation.²⁰
- Children regularly exposed to gambling advertisements are more likely to bet among friends, try to enter bookmakers, and gamble when they turn 18 years old.²¹
- The younger children start gambling, the more likely it is they will become habitual and problem gamblers, regardless whether they are from an urban or a suburban community.²²
- Almost half these teenagers– 49% – said some of these companies’ commercials made gambling look like a good way to make money.²³ “Cash back” offers, a casino marketing practice to make the player feel better about losing by offering them a cash return on part of their wager, contributes to the perception by children that they could not lose from gambling.²⁴
- When gambling operators lobby for sports gambling in 2019, it means allowing gambling on almost any kind of contest that you can imagine such as:

- Betting on video games like Fortnite or eSports;
- In-play betting which involves betting on a sporting event while that event is being played (i.e. bet the over/under on a punt; will the next pitch be a ball or strike; how many three pointers will Stephen Curry make in the second quarter; etc.)
- Betting on pop culture events and TV programs like the Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee, The Bachelor and The Oscars.

3) For the Majority Who Don't Gamble, You Pay Even If You Don't Play

- Gambling lobbyists and some public officials continue to tout government-sanctioned gambling as a way to raise tax revenue. But history has shown repeatedly that this argument is either overstated or wrong. A 2016 national report by SUNY-Albany found that while states creating new revenue streams from gambling may see momentary bumps in tax income, “the revenue returns deteriorate—and often quickly.”²⁵
- Beyond its obvious status as a budgetary shell game, government-sanctioned gambling incurs major social costs that end up being footed by all taxpayers. In addition to targeting and exploiting the financially desperate and cultivating addiction,^{26 27} government-sanctioned gambling leads to increases in rates of personal bankruptcy and provides new avenues for crime and money laundering.^{28 29} Gambling operators don't pay for the harms they cause families, businesses, and communities. Taxpayers do.

- All the citizens who don't gamble also pay another way. Government-sanctioned gambling lowers our national standard of living because it's a sterile transfer of money from millions of ordinary people's pockets into a small number of other people's pockets, producing nothing new and nothing of lasting value. Its economic impact is similar to throwing your money on the street so someone else can pick it up – it redistributes wealth without creating it. Because this nonproductive activity nevertheless uses up time and resources, we experience a reduced national standard of living, a consequence that impacts all of us.

4) Illegal Gambling Tends to Increase When States Legalize Gambling

- The primary source of information for the size and scope of illegal sports gambling in the U.S. has been the American Gaming Association, the national lobbying organization for gambling operators *who have a vested financial interest in seeing commercialized gambling metastasize.*³⁰
- When gambling operators call for “regulation,” what they really mean is government granting monopolies and awarding regulatory advantages to favored firms.
- If the illegal sports gambling operators supposedly cannot be controlled right now, as the big commercial gambling operators claim, then how can you control and regulate the gambling operators you license? If you can't shut down the illegal sports gambling operators now, how would you possibly shut down licensed operators who don't follow the rules?
- There are a number of other reasons why illegal gambling tends to increase when states sanction gambling. These include:

³⁰ “The American Gaming Association suggests that $4.6 billion will be wagered illegally on the Eagles versus Patriots match-up,” Inc Magazine, Jan. 30, 2018 <https://www.inc.com/darren-heitner/billions-will-once-again-be-illegally-wagered-on-super-bowl.html>

- Untaxed illegal operators can offer better odds and tax avoidance that legal operations cannot.
- Once gamblers start betting legally, they become less averse to gambling in unlicensed venues and websites.
- Law enforcement in gambling states view illegal gambling as a state revenue issue rather than a criminal activity, making enforcement less of a priority.
- Lastly, it’s revealing to contrast government-sanctioned gambling operators with illegal gambling operators. No illegal gambling operator is putting liens on the homes of citizens to collect gambling losses, like legal operators do. No illegal operator sends free gambling wagers by direct mail to your house to lure you back to the local casino, like legal operators do. No illegal operator is pushing $30 lottery scratch tickets, seven days a week, in economically-depressed communities, like state lotteries do. No illegal operators are running gambling ads during live broadcasts of sporting events with such intensity that one out of every five ads is to place a bet, which is what some of the legal sports gambling operators maneuvering here in the U.S. do in places like the United Kingdom.³¹ No illegal operator is sponsoring pro sports teams like the legal operators do in the U.K.³²
